- Felt sheets 9" x 12" (Frankenstein-black, green, grey, white)
(Mummy-white, black)
- Embroidery floss that coordinates with the template you are using.

tools

- Fabric scissors
- Chenille needle (big eye, sharp tip)
- Hot glue/gun (If you do not want to sew.)
- Printed templates

instructions

1

Place your scrap paper inside your tote bag to prevent the two sides from sticking.

2

Cut out all the pieces of your template.
Frankenstein-(face, bolts, hair) OR Mummy-(outer eye, inner eye).

3

Trace them onto the felt pieces.

4

Cut all felt pieces out.

5

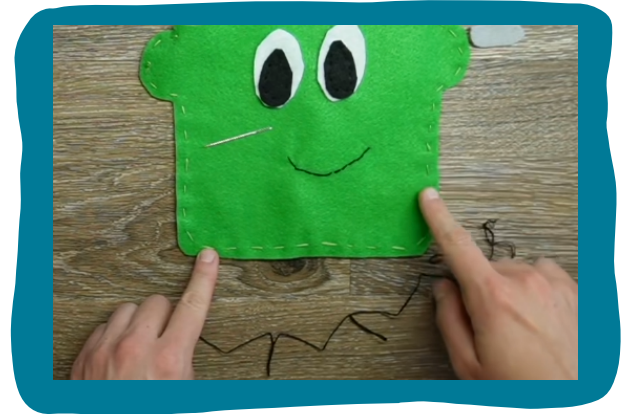

Thread your needle with the embroidery floss you want to use for accents. I used all six strands. Tie a knot at the end and start in the back of your felt to hide the knot.

6

Optional: Stitch an outline around the face using the running stitch. Glue or sew the eyes on the face (I sewed mine on). When you need a new thread, make sure to make a loop in the back and tie a knot to secure it.

I used 3-6 strands of black embroidery floss for the smile and stitches using the backstitch.

8 Once all the pieces have their accents you can glue them to your tote bag. I find that you need quite a bit of glue to secure the pieces. Add the glue to the back of your felt pieces and place it on your bag.

9 If you are doing the mummy bag, you will do the same process by cutting out the eyepieces, and then I just cut strips of white felt and placed them randomly on my bag and glued them down as I went. I did not use any accent stitching on the mummy bag.
